the continual rise of english as a global lingua franca has meant that english literature both as a discipline and as a tool in esl and efl classrooms is being used in varied ways outside the inner circle of english this edited collection provides an overview of english literature education in the asia pacific in global times bringing to international attention a rich understanding of the trends issues and challenges specific to nations within the asia pacific region comprising contributions from australia china hong kong india indonesia malaysia philippines singapore and vietnam the collection addresses the diversity of learners in different national cultural and teaching contexts in doing so it provides insights into historical and current trends in literature education foregrounds specific issues and challenges in policymaking and implementation presents practical matters concerning text selection use of literature in the language classroom innovative practices in literature education and raises pressing and important questions about the nature purpose and importance of literature education in global times this book focusses on computer methodologies as a way of investigating language and character in literary texts both theoretical and practical it surveys investigations into characterization in literary linguistics and personality in social psychology before carrying out a computational analysis of virginia woolf s experimental novel the waves frequencies of grammatical and semantic categories in the language of the six speaking characters are analyzed using wmatrix software developed by ucrel at lancaster university the quantitative analysis is supplemented by a qualitative analysis into recurring patterns of metaphor the author concludes that these analyses successfully differentiate all six characters both synchronically and diachronically and claims that this methodology is also applicable to the study of personality in non literary language the book written in a clear and accessible style will be of interest to post graduate students and academics in linguistics stylistics literary studies psychology and also computational approaches language through literature provides a definitive introduction to the english language through the medium of english literature through the use of illustrations from poetry prose and drama this book offers a lively guide to important concepts and techniques in english language study among the many topics covered in the book are the form and meaning of words the structure of narrative discourses and the organization of dialogue and conversation each chapter explores a specific aspect of the modern english language using a combination of exposition and practical activities each chapter also provides points for further discussion and includes project work for use individually or as part of a group readers will find the author's selection and presentation of topics helpful as Paul Simpson progressively widens the scope of topics from single words to the structure of whole conversations. Language through literature is designed for the non-specialist who is new to the study of the English language and will be particularly relevant to anyone interested in the relationship between the English language and English literature.

The literary canon implies the evaluation or estimation of certain literary texts as the most important during a particular time. The canon is not merely a set of texts; it is a set of standards, evaluative procedures, and values. Belonging to a canon confers a guarantee of literary greatness. A canon is formed by a particular group to channelize cultural hegemony over others or can be constructed by a governed group to bring about cultural symmetry. The rise of diverse literatures in English in different parts of the world after the colonial rule of England was the consequence of an urge to articulate a cultural equilibrium or an urge to strike back. The process of canon formation is also a focused and bigoted act and is always carried out to accomplish certain self-centred objectives. It is commonly accepted that canon formation is executed to accomplish or naturalize certain ideological functions in the sphere of Indian English literature. Indian English fiction after the end of the 1980s has emerged as a new canon. This book looks into the process of literary canon formation in Indian universities and examines such fiction as an alternative literary canon and as an anti-imperialistic response to the British literary canon. The book ascertains the anti-imperialistic design involved in forming the canon of post-1980 Indian English fiction, examines the gradual emerging trends in such fiction, and discerns the role of language, culture, and native ethos in the formation of a canon. It also differentiates post-1980s Indian English fiction from British fiction, Bhasha fiction, and even from pre-1980s Indian English fiction.

This collection of papers examines the relationship between the teaching of language and the teaching of literature to non-native students. The book attempts to identify key theoretical issues and principles as a basis for further discussion.

Exploring the language of poems, plays, and prose examines how readers interact with literary works, how they understand and are moved by them. Mick Short considers how meanings and effects are generated in the three major literary genres, carrying out stylistic analysis of poetry, drama, and prose fiction. In turn, he analyses a wide range of extracts from English literature, adopting an accessible approach to the analysis of literary texts which can be applied easily to other texts in English and in other languages.

the discipline of world literature has traditionally focused on written literatures particularly the novel with little emphasis placed on the unwritten verbal arts despite the significance of oral literary expressions around the world in the past as in the present this volume redresses this gap by putting the discipline of world literature into dialogue with scholarship on orature and folklore it asks what does world literature look like if we start from orature from oral texts and utterances and from the performances and audiences that support it featuring contributions from an international array of scholars oral literary worlds explores oral traditions from three multilingual regions the maghreb east africa and south asia essays discuss a variety of vernacular genres from swahili tumbuizo to na o folk songs shedding light on less studied forms of vernacular oral production collectively the contributions critique the characterisation of oral traditions as static and pre modern and underscore the contemporary relevance of orature to cultural and political discourse oral literary worlds offers a timely and accessible perspective on world literature through the lens of orature moving away from traditional hierarchies and dichotomies that have characterised previous scholarship it aims to open up new ways of thinking through local and transnational textual circulation literary power dynamics the interaction between textuality and audiences and aesthetic philosophies this volume will be an invaluable resource for scholars of world literature folklore and performance studies and will further interest teachers and students of popular culture literature of dissent and music a variety of imaginative techniques for integrating literature work with language learning over a period of over forty years geoffrey leech has made notable contributions to the field of literary stylistics using the interplay between linguistic form and literary function as a key to the mystery of how a text comes to be invested with artistic potential in this book seven earlier papers and articles read previously only by a restricted audience have been brought together with four new chapters the whole volume showing a continuity of approach across a period when all too often literary and linguistic studies have appeared to drift further apart leech sets the concept of foregrounding also known as defamiliarization at the heart of the interplay between form and interpretation through practical and insightful examination of how poems plays and prose works produce special meaning he counteracts the flight from the text that has characterized thinking about language and literature in the last thirty years when the response of the reader rather than the characteristics and meaning potential of the text itself have been given undue prominence the book provides an enlightening analysis of well known as well as less well known texts of great writers of the past including Keats, Shelley, Samuel Johnson, Shaw, Dylan Thomas and Virginia Woolf.

This volume argues for an innovative interdisciplinary approach to the analysis and translation of literary style based on a mutually supportive combination of traditional close reading and distant reading involving corpus linguistic analysis and text visualisation. The book contextualizes this approach within the broader story of the development of computer-assisted translation including machine translation and the use of CAT tools and elucidates the ways in which the approach can lead to better informed translations than those based on close reading alone. This study represents the first systematic attempt to use corpus linguistics and text visualisation in the process of translating individual literary texts as opposed to comparing and analysing already published originals and their translations using the case study of his translation into English of Uruguayan author Mario Benedetti's 1965 novel Gracias por el fuego. Youdale showcases how a close and distant reading approach (CDR) enhances the translator's ability to detect and measure a variety of stylistic features ranging from sentence length and structure to lexical richness and repetition both in the source text and in their own draft translation thus assisting them with the task of revision. The book reflects on the benefits and limitations of a CDR approach, its scalability and broader applicability in translation studies and related disciplines making this key reading for translators, postgraduate students and scholars in the fields of literary translation, corpus linguistics, corpus stylistics and narratology.

Linguistics and Literature is the first book to offer an overview of how linguistic theory can be applied to the oral and written literatures of the world.

This book discusses ways teachers can incorporate new reading technologies (e-books, online course modules, etc.) to improve reading comprehension with technology-centered literature circles. These techniques are particularly effective for distance learners, home-schooled students, and online courses.
