this is the first volume to offer a critical overview of the long and complicated history of translations of virgil from the early modern period to the present day transcending traditional studies of single translations or particular national traditions in isolation to offer an insightful comparative perspective the twenty nine essays in the collection cover numerous european languages from english french and german to greek irish italian norwegian slovenian and spanish but also look well beyond europe to include discussion of brazilian chinese esperanto russian and turkish translations of virgil while the opening two contributions lay down a broad theoretical and comparative framework the majority conduct comparisons within a particular language and combine detailed case studies with in depth contextualization and theoretical background showing how the translations discussed are embedded in their own cultures and historical moments the final two essays are written from the perspective of contemporary translators closing out the volume with a profound assessment not only of the influence exerted by the major roman poet on later literature but also why translation of a canonical author such as virgil matters not only as a national and transnational cultural phenomenon but as a personal engagement with a literature of enduring power and relevance translation and commentary are often associated with institutions and patronage but in italy around the time of dante widespread vernacular translation was mostly on the spontaneous initiative of individuals while dante is usually the starting point for histories of vernacular translation in europe this book demonstrates that the divine comedy places itself in opposition to a vast vernacular literature already in circulation among its readers alison cornish explores the anxiety of vernacularization as expressed by translators and contemporary authors the prevalence of translation in religious experience the role of scribal mediation the influence of the italian reception of french literature on that literature and how translating into the vernacular became a project of nation building only after its virtual demise during the humanist period vernacular translation was a phenomenon with which all authors in thirteenth and fourteenth century europe from brunetto latini to giovanni boccaccio had to contend this book explores how language is used to create division and discrimination in diverse european societies by emphasizing differences in ethnicity race national identity beliefs or appearance the authors analyze how public discourse particularly in political and media narratives shapes and reinforces an us vs them mindset they examine words and expressions that denigrate or marginalize specific groups in polish german czech slovak and croatian and observe how certain communities are also reclaiming terms that were once hurtful the analyses of linguistic strategies employed in the process of othering demonstrate that the concept of othering can be effectively applied to linguistic data contributors are dagmara banasiak marta chojnacka kuraś marta falkowska jadranka gvozdanović milena
