thomas sowell s incisive critique of the intellectuals destructive role in shaping ideas about race in america intellectuals and race is a radical book in the original sense of one that goes to the root of the problem the role of intellectuals in racial strife is explored in an international context that puts the american experience in a wholly new light the views of individual intellectuals have spanned the spectrum but the views of intellectuals as a whole have tended to cluster indeed these views have clustered at one end of the spectrum in the early twentieth century and then clustered at the opposite end of the spectrum in the late twentieth century moreover these radically different views of race in these two eras were held by intellectuals whose views on other issues were very similar in both eras intellectuals and race is not however a book about history even though it has much historical evidence as well as demographic geographic economic and statistical evidence all of it directed toward testing the underlying assumptions about race that have prevailed at times among intellectuals in general and especially intellectuals at the highest levels nor is this simply a theoretical exercise the impact of intellectuals ideas and crusades on the larger society both past and present is the ultimate concern these ideas and crusades have ranged widely from racial theories of intelligence to eugenics to social justice and multiculturalism in addition to in depth examinations of these and other issues intellectuals and race explores the incentives the visions and the rationales that drive intellectuals at the highest levels to conclusions that have often turned out to be counterproductive and even disastrous not only for particular racial or ethnic groups but for societies as a whole

from the mid 1700 s to the early 1900 s there was a mass exodus of people from the united kingdom of great britain and ireland during the reign of queen victoria from 1837 to 1901 around fifteen million people emigrated to america canada south africa new zealand and australia the reasons they left the country of their birth were many and varied there was high unemployment in the working classes due to the industrial revolution the agricultural revolution the enclosure movement and the land clearances the potato famines in ireland and scotland caused starvation and death prompting a mass exodus from those areas this story follows the lives of three families who immigrated to south australia in the 1850 s each family originated in different parts of the united kingdom of great britain and ireland and travelled separately to south australia spanning a four year period unaware that their future lives would be forever joined the speck families brick makers from cambridgeshire sailed from liverpool in october 1852 the stacey family willow workers from wiltshire sailed from southampton in january 1854 and the murphy family farmers from kilkenny sailed from plymouth in november 1855 the journey over the seas was hazardous and life in the early years of south australia took its toll on people as they tried to create better lives for themselves and their families in the new colony by the end of 1888 the three families were joined into one extended family living in the mid north of south australia more births deaths and marriages followed as the families grew and were subjected to droughts floods a world war and an economic depression all of these people left a memory legacy that should not be forgotten
