much has been written about african history and culture and yet one will comb this vast literature nearly in vain for a complete and comprehensive survey of african civilizations by a single author conventional history places the beginnings of ancient egypt at 3100 b c in this work dr charles finch demonstrates that the civilization of ancient egypt did not begin a mere 5 000 years ago but rather was part of a much longer much more widely based history of civilization according to the author s research the civilization of ancient egypt is more properly thought of as nile valley civilization covering an area from the northern sudan to modern egypt s northern border on the mediterranean over a period of 10 000 years using their own conventional historical timeline is one way many european scholars have been able to give the world a distorted view of nile valley history correcting these accumulated perceptions and deliberate distortions is one of the main purposes and goals of this work the proceedings of the 14th international conference for nubian studies are published in the research journal kush for its 20th issue sixty articles are presenting the advances of international research on middle nile valley archaeology and highlighting the richness and importance of sudanese sites along the different phases of its prehistory and history i e kingdoms of kush kerma napata meroe medieval post medieval and modern periods the eighty authors are coming from different disciplines archaeology linguistic bio anthropology museum studies etc their contributions are showing the nowadays implication of research in site management cultural heritage and museums especially in the frame of the bilateral programme qatar sudan archaeological programme of all mankind s vices racism is one of the most pervasive and stubborn success in overcoming racism has been achieved from time to time but victories have been limited thus far because mankind has focused on personal economic gain or power grabs ignoring generosity of the soul this bibliography brings together the literature africa has a vibrant past it emerges from this book as the proud possessor of a vast and highly complicated interweaving of peoples and cultures practising an enormous diversity of economic and social strategies in an extraordinary range of environmental situations at long last the archaeology of africa has revealed enough of africa s unwritten past to confound preconceptions about this continent and to upset the picture inferred from historic written records without an understanding of its past complexities it is impossible to grasp africa s present let alone its future
