in general debate 1 the employment generating power of improvements in skill levels is limited employment policy cannot depend fully on education policies 2 while the acquisition of skills has become a major public need there is increasing dependence for their provision on individual firms with government action being restricted to residual care for the unemployed rather than contributing at the leading edge of advanced skills policy covering france germany italy japan sweden the uk and the usa this book provides a unique approach to education and training within the broader political and economic environment as such it will appeal to students teachers and practitioners concerned with vocational training human resource management industrial relations and the sociology of the economy
