in order to prepare a successful research project a qualitative researcher often must consult media documents of various types authors david l altheide and christopher j schneider show readers how to obtain categorize and analyze these different media documents in this entry in the qualitative research methods series they look at traditional primary documents such as newspapers and magazines but also at more recent forms television newscasts and cyberspace the use of student examples of research protocols makes this book a useful primer in deriving meaning from the bombardment of media documents a qualitative researcher faces from the foundations of the world s first great empires to the empires of today war has preoccupied human civilisation for as many as 4000 years it has fascinated horrified thrilled confused inspired and disgusted mankind since records began provoking such a huge range of emotions and reactions and fulfilling all the elements of newsworthiness it is hardly surprising that war makes good news modern technological advancements such as the camera and television brought the brutality of war into the homes and daily lives of the public no longer a far away and out of sight affair the public s ability to see what was happening on the frontline changed not only how wars were fought but why they were fought even when a war is considered popular the involvement of the press and the weight of public opinion has led to criticisms that have transformed modern warfare almost in equal measure to the changes brought about by weapon technology war reporting seeks to look beyond the official story to understand the very nature of conflict whilst acknowledging that it is no longer simply good versus evil this edited volume presents a unique insight into the work of the war correspondent and battlefield photographer from the earliest days of modern war reporting to the present it reveals how influenced by the changing face of modern warfare the work of the war correspondent has been significantly altered in style method and practice by combining historical analysis with experiences of modern day war reporting this book provides an important contribution to the understanding of this complicated profession which will be of interest to journalists academics and students alike the rapidly changing nature of life in canadian rural communities is more than a simple response to economic conditions people living in rural places are part of a new social agenda characterized by transformation of livelihoods landscapes and social relations inviting us to reconsider the meanings of community culture and citizenship this volume presents the work of researchers from a variety of fields who explore social transformation in rural settlements across the country the essays collectively generate a nuanced portrait of how local forms of action adaptation identity and imagination are reshaping aboriginal and non aboriginal communities of rural canada
