in an era of climate emergency and political upheaval heritage demands radical rethinking this volume confronts the enlightenment rooted dualisms that fragment heritage into opposing categories by embracing posthumanist concepts like naturecultures and agency this volume explores entangled human and nonhuman pasts from the contested białowieża forest to ancient sensory environments through case studies spanning archaeology museum studies and literary analysis contributors unravel heritage as a dynamic more than human meshwork this collection is an urgent call to transcend reductive binaries fostering an ethical responsive and sustainable heritage practice attuned to our shared precarious futures conflict heritage and world making in the chaco documents and interprets the physical remains and afterlives of the chaco war 1932 35 known as south america s first modern armed conflict in what is now present day paraguay it focuses not only on archaeological remains as conventionally understood but takes an ontological approach to heterogeneous assemblages of objects texts practices and landscapes shaped by industrial war and people s past and present engagements with them these assemblages could be understood to constitute a dark heritage the debris of a failed modernity yet it is clear that they are not simply dead memorials to this bloody war but have been and continue to be active in making unmaking and remaking worlds both for the participants and spectators of the war itself as well as those who continue to occupy and live amongst the vast accretions of war matériel which persist in the present the book critically examines the making of german jewish musical heritage and its location and dubious non location within the german cultural sector and larger jewish community in germany it further theorizes on the intersection of jewish heritage and cultural sustainability by employing thoughts and ideas of critical heritage studies this book provides a unique in depth look at three indigenous world heritage sites in canada and their use for indigenous empowerment and community development based on extensive ethnographic field studies and comprehensive narrative interviews it shows how the three first nation communities presented in the case studies enforce recognition of their collective rights to preserve their cultural heritage and assert their right to political economic cultural and social self determination it also considers the prevailing universalistic discourses around world heritage and the various ways in which they serve to either reinforce existing oppressive conditions regarding indigenous communities and voices or provide opportunities to overcome them the book will be of interest to scholars and students working on social and cultural histories histories of colonialism and in heritage and museum studies historic sites memorials national parks museums we live in an age in which heritage is ever present but what does it mean to live amongst the spectral traces of the past the heterogeneous piling up of historic materials in the present how did heritage grow from the concern of a handful of enthusiasts and specialists in one part of the world to something which is considered to be universally cherished and what concepts and approaches are necessary to understanding this global obsession over the decades since the adoption of the world heritage convention various crises of definition have significantly influenced the ways in which heritage is classified perceived and managed in contemporary global societies taking an interdisciplinary approach to the many tangible and intangible things now defined as heritage this book attempts simultaneously to account for this global phenomenon and the industry which has grown up around it as well as to develop a toolkit of concepts with which it might be studied in doing so it provides a critical account of the emergence of heritage studies as an interdisciplinary field of academic study this is presented as part of a broader examination of the function of heritage in late modern societies with a particular focus on the changes which have resulted from the globalisation of heritage during the late twentieth and early twenty first centuries developing new theoretical approaches and innovative models for more dialogically democratic heritage decision making processes heritage critical approaches unravels the relationship between heritage and the experience of late modernity whilst reorienting heritage so that it might be more productively connected with other pressing social economic political and environmental issues of our time over the past 30 years museums have turned to participation in the hope that direct involvement of non museum staff would serve their claims to be accessible inclusive representative and diverse and yet adding participation to museums has often generated conflict disappointment and anger deconstituting museums argues that the difficulties produced by adding participatory practice arise from political incompatibility in the representational liberal logics that underpin museum decision making trustees and professionals make decisions on behalf of future generations and the public this is a political infrastructure the book names museum constitution conversely participation arises from ideas and practices from direct and horizontal political traditions drawing those who act as facilitators into new relationships and expanding political imaginations through sustained engagement with theories of affect materialism and feminist and decolonial praxis helen graham identifies techniques for deconstituting museums she uses experimental writing as a method to turn away from the desire to right institutional wrongs and towards relational and directly negotiated ways of organising in doing so she locates participation not as engagement but as a mode of governance that is enabled by and enables variant political ontologies this is an alternative named participatory worlding the affective work of facilitating participation has long tugged at and frayed museums constitutional liberal logics deconstituting museums envisages how participation and its affects might be activated in reworking the politics of heritage contemporary archaeology and the city foregrounds the archaeological study of post industrial and other urban transformations through a diverse international collection of case studies over the past decade contemporary archaeology has emerged as a dynamic force for dissecting and contextualizing the material complexities of present day societies contemporary archaeology challenges conventional anthropological and archaeological conceptions of the past by pushing temporal boundaries closer to if not into the present the volume is organized around three themes that highlight the multifaceted character of urban transitions in present day cities creativity ruination and political action the case studies offer comparative perspectives on transformative global urban processes in local contexts through research conducted in the struggling post industrial cities of detroit belfast indianapolis berlin liverpool belém and post apartheid cape town as well as the thriving urban centres of melbourne new york city london chicago and istanbul together the volume contributions demonstrate how the contemporary city is an urban palimpsest comprised by archaeological assemblages of the built environment the surface and buried sub surface that are traces of the various pasts entangled with one another in the present this volume aims to position the city as one of the most important and dynamic arenas for archaeological studies of the contemporary by presenting a range of theoretically engaged case studies that highlight some of the major issues that the study of contemporary cities pose for archaeologists the object of conservation examines how historic buildings monuments and artefacts are cared for as valued embodiments of the past it tells the fascinating story of the working lives of those involved in conservation through an ethnographic account of a national heritage agency how are conservation objects made what is the moral purpose of that making and what practical consequences flow from this revealing the hidden labour of keeping things as they are the book highlights the ethical commitments and dilemmas involved in trying to care well in doing so it reveals how conservation objects are made literally to matter taking debates in the interdisciplinary field of heritage studies forward in important new directions the book engages with themes of broader interest within the arts humanities and social sciences shedding new light on time authenticity modernity materiality expert knowledge and the politics of care the object of conservation is a thought provoking and engaging account that offers original insights for students scholars heritage professionals and others interested in the work of caring for the past this volume provides an important new synthesis of archaeological work carried out in australia on the post contact period it draws on dozens of case studies from a wide geographical and temporal span to explore the daily life of australians in settings such as convict stations goldfields whalers camps farms pastoral estates and urban neighbourhoods the different conditions experienced by various groups of people are described in detail including rich and poor convicts and their superiors aboriginal people women children and migrant groups the social themes of gender class ethnicity status and identity inform every chapter demonstrating that these are vital parts of human experience and cannot be separated from archaeologies of industry urbanization and culture contact the book engages with a wide range of contemporary discussions and debates within australian history and the international discipline of historical archaeology the colonization of australia was part of the international expansion of european hegemony in the eighteenth and nineteenth century the material discussed here is thus fundamentally part of the global processes of colonization and the creation of settler societies the industrial revolution the development of mass consumer culture and the emergence of national identities drawing out these themes and integrating them with the analysis of archaeological materials highlights the vital relevance of archaeology in modern society this book summarizes archaeological approaches to the contemporary past and suggests a new agenda for the archaeology of late modern societies the principal focus is the archaeology of developed de industrialized societies during the second half of the twentieth century and the beginning of the twenty first this period encompasses the end of the cold war and the beginning of the internet age a period which sits firmly within what we would recognize to be a period of lived and living memory rodney harrison and john schofield explore how archaeology can inform the study of this time period and the study of our own society through detailed case studies and an in depth summary of the existing literature their book draws together cross disciplinary perspectives on contemporary material culture studies and develops a new agenda for the study of the materiality of late modern societies
